Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 5-8, 10, 12-14, 27, 30-34, 41, 43, and 45-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Zaino (4447967).

Zaino shows a shoe comprising an upper formed from a substrate comprising a textile material formed from a plurality of filaments or fibers (fabric sock, it is noted that according to Merriam Webster Online dictionary the term “fabric” is defined as “cloth” and “cloth” is defined as “a pliable material made usually by weaving, felting, or knitting natural or synthetic fibers and filaments”) and a web layer with apertures (formed by elements 9-14) which is injection molded onto the substrate layer and the polymer material inherently extends around the plurality of filaments or fibers to secure the web layer (Zaino states “the plastic material sets on the sock and combines securely therewith” (column 1 lines 60-65) and “The plastic structure is indissolubly bonded to the vamp or sock” (column 2 lines 36-40)). During the injection molding process described by Zaino the plastic polymeric material would inherently extend around the plurality of filaments or fibers to secure the web layer.

In reference to claims 11-13, 31, 32, and 46-48, a comparison of the recited process with the prior art processes does NOT serve to resolve the issue concerning patentability of the product. In re Fessman, 489 F.2d 742, 180 U.S.P.Q. 324 (CCPA 1974). Whether a product is patentable depends on whether it is known in the art or it is obvious, and is not governed by whether the process by which it is made is patentable. In re Klug, 333 F2d 905, 142 U.S.P.Q. 161 (CCPA 1964). In an ex parte case, product-by-process claims are not construed as being limited to the product formed by the specific process recited. In re Hirao et al., 535 F2d 67, 190 U.S.P.Q. 15, see footnote 3 (CCPA 1976).

Art Unit: 3728

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 2, 11, 29, and 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zaino.

3. Zaino as discussed above shows a shoe substantially as claimed except for the exact material for the substrate and the exact polymeric material. Zaino suggests the use of different materials (column 2 lines 40-44). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a non woven sock fabric and polyurethane, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

4. Claims 3, 4, 28, and 42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zaino in view of Shiomura (4785558) or Bartels (4232458).

Zaino shows a shoe substantially as claimed except for the exact substrate.

Shiomura or Bartels teaches the use of a substrate which comprises two layers which are interconnected by fibers as a material for uppers of footwear. It would have been obvious to use a layered substrate as taught by either Shiomura or Bartels for the substrate in the shoe of Zaino to increase fit and comfort.

5. Claims 8, 10, 33, and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zaino in view of Sass (3650051).

Zaino shows a shoe substantially as claimed except for ridges. Zaino suggests different vamp shapes (column 2 lines 40-44). Sass teaches providing ridges (26) on a lateral portion of a shoe. It would have been obvious to provide ridges as taught by Sass on the lateral portion of an upper in the shoe of Zaino to allow the shoe to be used for kicking a ball and to control the ball.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claim 49 is allowed.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
